Why CANADA?

Canada is one of the main destinations in the world for international students.

According to ICEF Monitor, in 2019 Canada received more than 700,000 international students, out of which, 76.5% came to this country to take lessons in post-secondary education.

You are probably wondering what is attracting so many students every year. The list is very extensive, but here we summarized it for you in three important points:

I. Affordable

The combined average amount of tuition and yearly expenses of international students is lower than USA, UK and Australia.

2. Quality of Education

Canadian degrees and Diplomas are widely recognized and can compete shoulder to shoulder with those offered in countries such as the United Kingdom, Australia or the United States.

There is a wide variety of institutions to choose from and, regardless of the program you choose, you can rest assured that your diploma will be well recognized.

3. Immigration Options

If you are planning to study abroad, but you are also very interested in developing a new life in the country you choose for your studies, Canada is waiting for you with open arms!

One of the best parts of studying in Canada is that our country has several programs designed to encourage international students and skilled workers to transition from temporary resident to permanent resident.

Bottom line is: it is no surprise that Canada has become a leading destination for international students.

The access to world class education, affordable tuition and the possibility to become a permanent resident make Canada a very appealing option.

ABOUT IBT COLLEGE

ACADEMIC PATHWAY PROGRAM

IBT College's new innovative and intensive Pathway Program prepares students for success at the University or College level. The Pathway is an 8-week program with a course workload of 240 hours. With small class sizes, experienced educators, and a challenging and varied curriculum, our graduating students leave with the confidence and the skills they need in order to pursue their academic careers.

Academic Essay Writing & Reading Skills

From generating a strong, debatable thesis, to detailed editing and final submission, each week of the curriculum focuses on an academic essay style (persuasive, argumentative etc.) combined with a structural focus (thesis, body paragraphs, works cited). The essays are held to MLA standards.

Presentation Skills

Pathway students produce twelve academic presentations in the program. Each week, a presentation skill is focused on. Presentations and projects in the Pathway Program need to reflect the reality of the tools available. Students become Keynote experts, weaving between multiple apps and techniques to best execute their project requirements. Time management is also key, as students are educated on how to best manage their time throughout the process of creating a project and/or presentation.

Group Work

Our Pathway Program often reflects the standard University tutorial setup, with active listening, turn-taking, and elaboration skills in constant use and refinement. Critical thinking is explored in small and large groups daily, and a series of group work activities each week prepare them for working and collaborating with native speakers at the University level.

Research Skills

Thesis development and paraphrasing are consistently reinforced to meet the Academic Honesty standards of the Modern Language Association. Improved research and information-management skills are demanded.

Multi-Media Skills

Integrating a digital component, Pathway students learn to manage, use, and present information and media at an expert level.

CELP Preparation Course

The CELPIP Preparation Program is designed for those who plan to apply for a working visa, permanent residence in Canada, or Canadian citizenship and are required to submit a proof of English language proficiency as part of their application. The program emphasizes the requirements and the expectations of each section of the exam and increases students' chances of achieving their target score. Students will refine their test taking skills through authentic practice materials including a sample exam and an on-going feedback from the instructor..
